About the Jean-Baptiste Say Institute for Entrepreneurship

Launched in 2007 and powered by EY and ESCP Foundation, the Chair of Entrepreneurship educated and accompanied people wanting to develop innovative projects in contexts of uncertainty and limited resources, whether as entrepreneurs, intrapreneurs, students or executives. In 2017, ESCP Business School elevated the Chair of Entrepreneurship to department status and founded simultaneously the Jean-Baptiste Say Institute for Entrepreneurship.

As a team, we stress three areas of excellence:

- 1) Entrepreneurial mindset, methods and pedagogy,
- 2) Entrepreneurship as competence beyond start-ups and beyond business,
- 3) Entrepreneurial ecosystems and their interconnections.

The Say Institute is intensively engaged in research activity in all three areas and strives for further developing entrepreneurship as a field of research. In addition, the Say Institute develops an innovative and experiential pedagogy, offers unique incubation and acceleration (Blue Factory), as well as a strong connection with local ecotopes.

We run our own programmes, such as the Option E, U-School, or the Executive Master in Digital Innovation and Entrepreneurial Leadership, and we support new programmes like the MSc in Sustainability Entrepreneurship & Innovation. Every year, we train over 1000 students and managers in entrepreneurship, we mentor around 250 projects, and we co-create a growing community of thousands across the globe through our newsletter (more than 22 000 subscribers) as well as multiple events (for instance "Made In ESCP" and the "EntrepreneurSHIP Festival").

The Say Institute is a team of more than 60 dedicated people (researchers, teachers, programme and project managers) working and collaborating from the school's various campuses and combining rich and diverse expertise (corporate entrepreneurship, family business, entrepreneurial finance, social entrepreneurship, business modeling, digital innovation, sharing economy, design, art, and many more).

What we are looking for

- A Ph.D. (or equivalent) in entrepreneurship or in a related field, and preferably already first experiences
- Evidence of (or clear potential to achieve) excellence in research (such as publications in leading journals, and/or highly innovative research)
- A passion for entrepreneurs and a genuine interest in working with diverse stakeholders along the entrepreneurial value chain toward practical and theoretical value creation and thought leadership
- Experience and interest in teaching a diverse student population (e.g. bachelor, master, executives, small business entrepreneurs, family businesses, the general public)
- A curiosity for experimenting and working in open learning communities

The following profiles are of particular interest: people with an interest in the entrepreneurial mindset, methods and pedagogy, entrepreneurial finance, and digital business. The position reflects an appropriate balance between research, teaching, curriculum development, and community development, and it requires a passion for all of these elements and a capacity to interconnect them.

What you should be looking for

Our future colleague wants to represent the fields of entrepreneurship, intrapreneurship and innovation in teaching and research, thereby strengthening, co-creating and shaping the school's entrepreneurship and innovation profile. Furthermore, you are enthusiastic to join and work in our international faculty team: René Mauer, Matthias Mrozewski, Christoph Seckler (all Berlin), Sylvain Bureau, Yi Jiang, Martin Kupp, Eric Pesnel, Robert Sheldon, Rand Gerges-Yammine (all based in Paris), Davide Sola and Benjamin Voyer (London), Lola Herrero (Madrid), Alisa Sydow (Turin), together with dedicated intrapreneurs, doctoral students, and affiliated practitioners.
